A Year Round Exhibit Of Home Products.

The focusing of attention on Atlanta products incident to the celebration of Georgia Products day recalls the movement to establish here a permanent exhibit of Atlanta goods—a movement that at one time gained an auspicious start but was never brought to completion.

When business has fully revived this project will undoubtedly be renewed for it cannot be other than a valuable asset to the entire city.

These observations are called forth by the publisher report of what has been accomplished by the permanent exhibit conducted by Nashville manufacturers during its first year. An idea of what has been done at Nashville and a clear understanding of the scope of such an institution can be obtained from the following account found in the Manufacturers' Record.

The permanent exhibit of the Nashville Manufacturers' association is just rounding out its first year in that progressive Tennessee city. It is an exhibit of local made goods in a building five stories high, giving more than 25,000 square feet of floor space. W. Murray Hogan, manager of the exhibit, reports that during the year more than 100,000 people have visited it registering from every state in the Union and from all the principal cities. More than twenty conventions have been entertained in the building and schools and churches of Nashville have taken a practical interest in the success of the exhibit.

Whenever Atlanta manufacturing enterprises are brought to the attention of the public, the public never fails to be amazed at their extent and the variety and excellence of their products. This fact was very much in evidence on the occasion of the tour of a number of industrial plants conducted last spring under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. The most frequent expressions then heard was, "Well, I never knew Atlanta had anything like this before!"

And this fact is undoubtedly that Atlantians on the whole are ignorant of the greatness of the industrial enterprises at their very doors. A number of forces now, however, are at work all tending toward making Atlanta products known both at home and abroad.

Georgia Products day in Atlanta gives special emphasis to Atlanta goods, but this is only one day in the year. Such emphasis would be given every day by a permanent exhibit not only for Atlanta folk but for the thousands of visitors from all parts of the United States who come to our city annually.

The wide influence of such an exhibit is thus described by W. M. Hogan, manager of the Nashville institute, in his letter to the Manufacturers' Record: In one year's time we have reached from Maine to California and from Canada to Cuba, each time impressing the magnitude of Nashville as a manufacturing city upon the minds of the visitors. Much business has resulted for the exhibitor, both direct and indirect. The exhibit is now reaping the harvest of its first year's existence. It is becoming well advertised and is now considered headquarters for all things made in Nashville.

At Chattanooga is also a permanent exhibit of manufactured products which has been in successful operation for a number of years. Atlanta, greater than either of these cities in its industrial enterprises, is still without the advantage such an institution would afford. It is a lack that will undoubtedly be supplied in full measure and at no very distant day.

Atlanta continues to break records—weather record included.
Let the oldest inhabitant produce another November as cold.

The Haste of Senator Lodge.

It is apparent that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts is beginning to show early for campaign thither to be used in 1916 against the rejection of a Democratic administration. His criticism of the attitude of the present administration in regard to the incident of a boat from the cruiser Tennessee being fired on by Turkish forts can hardly be predicated on any other theory.

Nor is it difficult to see that it was a very poor bargain he received in his purchase of campaign thunder—it is of the shoddiest character—for the attitude of the administration has been characterized by the peace which is the result of cool common sense and the effort to arrive at the exact causes that led to the incident.

Yet Senator Lodge in addressing the Middlesex club, a Republican organization at Boston, felt it obliged upon him to make political capital out of a "delicate international situation in the process of investigation and adjustment." The senator also tried a bit of sectionalism by declaring in his speech that "the people should say whether money shall be diverted from building southern postoffices to our defense." In his effort to first at the bargain count of marked-down political weapons, he has trampled on himself and is found in a dazed and befuddled condition.

Winter Work for The Farm Girls' Clubs.

The work of the Boys' Corn clubs and the Girls' Canning clubs in the South is too well known to need detailed repetition here. It is enough to say that these organizations which are fostered by state and federal aid are making a new agriculture in the South and giving a new meaning to the life of the farm home.

So successful has been the work of the girls' clubs, under the direction of the government's women agents, during the summer months that it is to be continued throughout the winter. Announcement to this effect has been issued by the department of agriculture at Washington.

Whereas during the summer the canning of fruits and vegetables was the order of business for the farm girls' organizations, the programs now will consist of practical lessons in home economics which according to the government's announcement will include "the utilization of canned goods in cooking, bread making, the use of fireless cookers, the preparation of vegetables from winter gardens; home-made step-savings and labor-saving devices and similar subjects."

The club members will be encouraged to grow winter gardens. They will meet at school houses or at private homes to report on their work and to discuss methods and exchange experiences.

In giving an account of the progress of the girls' clubs the Washington announcement says:

Practical demonstration work for the girls of the South has only been carried on actively since 1910, when a few canning clubs were organized.
Since then the canning clubs have taken in more than 40,000 girls under the supervision of the nearly 400 women agents. The total value of the canned goods of these young workers of the South was $130,420.05 in 1912. Special products of Southern fruits and vegetables have been developed to a considerable extent. Reports thus far indicate that the records of 1914 will far surpass those of last year. A more recent development, the poultry club, has now 2,090 members.

Therein is sketched the outlines of a work of tremendous import to all the South. Every interest in this section which holds the advancement of the South dear to its heart should lend the girls' club and the agencies that are promoting them every form of aid and co-operation possible.

Edison and Sleep.

Thomas Edison is not only an inventor of devices but of ideas. On the occasion of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the invention of the electric light, Mr.
Edison gave to the world an idea which contains a high degree of originality, namely, that sleep is a useless habit and that eating is hardly less so, being very wasteful besides.

Mr. Edison's attack on sleep does not seem to have given out of the consideration that if sleep were abolished, there would be a wider and more continued use of lights, particularly electric lights, but to have been developed from his own experience.
He resents having to desist from the work of his investigations for any lighter diversions.

Mr. Edison is too great a man, his genius has wrought too much for mankind for any idea of his to be brushed aside as worthless. But perforce we must confess that he need never apply to the patent office for the protection of his no-sleep and little-eat discovery for it is destined never to come into such popularity that its use will become general.

The geniuses of earth pry into the unknown and bring forth new things, the great reformers insist on new ways of conduct, but common humanity persists in comfortably following the old paths.

It has long heard the cry, "You eat too much," but it gives almost heed there. Rather does it settle back in its chair after a meal about whose adequacy not a doubt has been allowed to remain and gives itself over to the amiable hope that everybody else in the world has feasted so completely. It even receives hospitably the judgment of the small boy who declared that there was no fun in eating just enough.

To tell humanity that it should do without sleep makes it drowsy at once. Sleeping it off is not confined solely to "drunks" but humanity thereby banishes not only its weariness of body but its weariness of mind—it beats the rubbed spots of the soul.

Rather does it side with Shakespeare who says that sleep knits up the ravelled sleeve of care than with Edison who would have the time for sleep shortened, thereby extending the time for the accumulation of care. 'Tis better that only a sleeve be come ravelled to be rewound again than that the whole garment of life become threadbare from overuse.

The Economic Fourth of July

By DR. FRANK GRANT.
(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Grant.)

Said Paul M. Warburg: "The 16th of November may be considered as the Fourth of July in the economic life of the United States. Coming generally, it will commemorate it as marking the foundation of financial emancipation."

The date mentioned is that on which the federal reserve system went into operation. By this system the money monopoly is broken up. Reserve banks in the various sections of the country will do what has heretofore been done by the good Wall street group.

It is an attempt to keep the money from being cornered. The trouble with a business world where money is based on gold, a fluctuating basis, is that it is a menace for the powerful and privileged to manipulate the money supply, just as they play with the beef, steel or wheat supply.

The federal reserve system, while it does not go to the root of the matter and base money on some wide and stable property, such as land, the source of all wealth, makes a stride in the right direction.
It will supply money to farmers, upon their products, for six months. That is grain money, we may say, hog and cow money.

It will furnish merchants, manufacturers and other business men with money upon whatever tangible, nature factors they may be able to show, that is, money resting upon manufactured goods, upon commercial profits and other wealth forms.

It is a step toward the creation of a circulating medium, for money is whatever is used as a circulating medium.

It has been expressed that this may lead to "inflation," which shows how business men are frightened by words. For the only kind of currency that is not based on overvalued property is the one that is redeemable at any time in real value, or of money that is not universally acceptable as legal tender.

It is a step toward the breaking of the money by which business is carried on it is expected to be of great benefit.

It is a step toward the government itself, representing the whole people, has its hand upon the machinery, it is hoped that the shrewdness and capacity of the few men who will be the money supply of the country to private advantage.

The whole thing is a step in the right direction, a move toward democracy and toward organized, effective and responsible democracy.

It is another indication of the coming day when the people shall stand for their own business and not leave it in the hands of feudal lords.

TRAVELLETTE
BY MRS. J. H. PENSANG.

Travelers seldom visit Penang that Malay port where the disguised German cruiser Emden the other day sank two hostile ships—but it is well worth while to drop anchor at the island of Sumatra.

Penang is a summer resort. When the thermometer in Burma gets up to 120 in the shade, the weather folk come down to Penang, where it rarely goes above 85. The seekers for the south disembark in the ragged little town and soon bargain for transportation up to the top of the mountain, where, swept by ocean breezes, perches the resort hotel with its huge roof of dependent bungalows.

There is no cog-wheel road, no funicular traction line. There are no buses. One must walk, or depend on somebody else walking for him. The latter is the easier way. An armchair of willow is fastened to two poles, the traveler is seated in it, and the porter, with melted butter. Two of them take the front cross pole and four of them the back, and so we go up the steep climb, whose path is a narrow, rocky, and path winds through forests of tree ferns and a wilderness of green, and every little while there is a break, through which beckon the turquoise waters of the Bay of Bengal.

At the top your exhausted coolies are paid and you are invited to a dinner. The dinner is a dinner that is not to be equaled anywhere, but the outward of it is of course he is an Armenian, because in the hotel business the Armenians are the swing of the Orient.
And it is not on the mountain top—the mercury stops at 59.

Recovery After War

He merely deceives himself who argues that the war's vast waste of life, capital and productive occupation can be incurred without its penalty. Yet, however great the waste, there is no reason to fear that it will produce chaos. The world of the war has been caught in a tremendous whirlpool of war, but it is below Niagara, and not above it.

It is safe to say that the world's recuperative power today is greater than ever before in its history. In the past 100 years—in fact, in the past twenty-five years—there has been a tremendous accumulation of wealth. There was the lack of reserve capital which in state of savagery meant that famine and depopulation were the normal and almost necessary sequel to war.
But as civilization and commerce have progressed, war supplies of capital, in a thousand different forms, have been accumulated. That eminent British author, Sir George Paish, places the wealth of Great Britain in 1914 at 17,000,000,000 pounds, or roughly, eighteen billions of dollars, against 2,500,000,000 pounds at the close of the Napoleonic wars.

He computes the wealth of the United States at one hundred and fifty billion dollars, against less than one and one-half billion hundred years ago. In 1914, France, in the same period, he estimates has been from 2,000,000,000 pounds to 10,000,000,000, and he places the wealth of Germany today at 10,000,000,000. He reckons the annual gross income, for these four countries alone, at 12,000,000,000 pounds, and their annual production of goods, of which latter he allotes 1,400,000,000 pounds, or $7,000,000,000, to the United States.

For the combatant nations such savings have, of course, been heavily cut, and on the other side of the ledger are the enormous extraordinary costs of war.
The world is not an enormous account, but the wartime hope that the debt will be liquidated without disaster. The rapidity with which a ransom, after the Franco-Prussian war, paid the staggering indemnity of one billion dollars exacted by Germany, commands wonder and admiration even today. Since then has virtually created what was long the second largest navy of the world, and the progress of the war has shown that domestic commerce has been almost as marked. It may be too much to expect that rehabilitation by the war's powers after the present war is ended will be as rapid. But the experience of France since her first onset in 1870 and of Japan after her exhausting success over Russia, indicates that the peace have kept pace with the enormous advancement, in the devastating sciences of war and tend to reduce in no small measure its inevitable aftermath of hardship.—Boston Transcript.

CADS AND THEIR WIVES

By E. K. WOOLEY.
(Copyright, 1914, by E. K. Wooley.)

The following letter refers to one particular man, but it might be well applied to a class of men—a large class.

"What do you think of a grouch of a man," writes my correspondent, "who is a perfectly good fellow outside his own home, but who treats his wife brutally in the privacy of his home? The neighbors all think a good deal of this man's wife. In the presence of strangers she treats her very nicely. The man, meanwhile, is helping a good cause, as he is doing in the good he does. But he calls his wife a regular spendthrift if she asks him for twenty-five cents for her own amusement, such as a matinee. He doesn't believe in recreation for a wife."

What do I think of him?
I think he is a sneak.

Only a creature of the calibre of a sneak will pretend goodness in public while he lets out his true nature in private upon the woman who is defenseless because she is the mistress of a man who is one can have more respect for a brute than for a sneak, for the brute shows on the surface what he is and all can see it.

More than one man has the reputation of being a fine fellow, generous, good-hearted, high-minded, outside of his home. But let the searchlight be turned upon his home, and his carefully built-away-from-home reputation will crumble like a Delian fort under the fire of German siege guns.

There was a little stenographer who thought she was a good deal better than her employer. She was good-looking, sweet-tempered, and, oh, his ideals were so perfectly grand. He brought her such beautiful things, and she was so good, and she was so kind, and she was so sweet, and she was so good, and she began to get away without a time when anybody was there to notice. He spoke so feelingly of the "little thing" that she was so good, and she was so kind,
was so kind, and she was so sweet, and she was so good, and she was so kind, and she was so sweet, and she was so good, and she was so kind, and she was so

The Spotlight

Frequent sprints and spills enlivened the last day's riding. At 8 o'clock this morning the cyclists had been pedalling for 128 hours and had but fourteen hours to ride. They were then going at a strong and steady pace, and the difference between the old record and the new one in the making would be greater at the end of the race than the 24 miles and four laps made at 8 o'clock. At that hour Moran and McMoran, Fage and Verri, Lawson and Jacobach, Cameron and Kaiser, Fogler and Hill and the two Frenchmen had ridden 256 miles and four laps; Lawrence and Magin and Root and Stark were a lap behind them, and

EIGHT BODIES WASHED UP ON SHORE OF LAKE

Barge Lost in Gale on Superior and Fears Are Felt for Two Big Steamers

(By Associated Press.)
SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 21.—Anxiety as to the fate of the steamer C. F. Curtis and the lumber barge S. K. Marvin, which had been blown down in the face of a heavy northwestern gale Wednesday morning, was unabated Friday. Eight bodies and quantities of wreckage washed ashore near Grand Marais yesterday afternoon told the fate of the lumber barge. Surge Annie M. Peterson and gave rise to grave apprehensions that the Curtis and Marvin likewise had gone down in the winter storm which had swept Lake Superior for the last three days.

All three vessels were owned by the Edward Hines Lumber company, of Chicago, and were headed for Tomahawk, the two barges in tow of the steamer. The Peterson carried a crew of seven and the finding of eight bodies led to the belief that one of the other boats had foundered. The search for the two boats was continuing, the lake shore for wreckage but no report has reached here that the fragments already could come from any ship other than the steamer.

Two of the bodies found were those of women. The bodies were found among lake shipping in the vicinity of Crookston, Minn., and were found by a local fisherman. The bodies were found among lake shipping in the vicinity of Crookston, Minn., and were found by a local fisherman.

TERRIFIC BATTLE IS IMMINENT AT LODZ WHEN ARMIES MEET

Serbia has broken the silence maintained for several days to deny the Austrian claims to a great victory. The Serbian legation at Athens, while admitting that the Austrians compelled a retreat from Valjevo, states that the Serbians withdrew in good order without any serious fighting, and that they are now occupying advantageous positions, ready to engage the advancing Austrians.

The Khedive of Egypt, Abbas Hilmi, who was reported several days ago to have cast his lot with the sultan of Turkey, his spiritual leader, in said in Paris today that he had decided to remain neutral, preparatory to leading an invasion of Egypt.

Little Change in Big Battle, Reports Paris
PARIS, Nov. 21.—The official communication given out in Paris this afternoon reads as follows:

The day of November 20, generally speaking, was similar to the two previous days. In the region of the Aisne and in Champagne, the advantage gained by our batteries over the artillery of the enemy has become more marked and has prevented the Germans from continuing the construction of certain trenches.

In the Argonne we blew up certain of the enemy's trenches. In the Vosges we have made progress. At certain points we have established our trenches at less than thirty yards from the German position.

Two Masked Men Overpower Lone Jailer and Release Prisoner

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 21.—General Jose Ynes Salazar escaped from the Bernalillo county jail at Old Albuquerque last night. Two masked men scaled the fence around the jail shortly after 5 o'clock and attacked Deputy Sheriff Charles Armito, who was alone in the jail. The men produced a post office check having been called away, it is said, by a false telephone call.

Armito reached for his revolver when one of the attackers hacked at him with a knife. The other attempted to shoot him. Armito, who was overpowered, was taken to a hospital. The men then escaped with Salazar.

TURKISH SHIPS PLANNED TO SHELL CZAR'S HOME

Cruisers En Route to Yalta When Attacked in Black Sea, Says Petrograd

PETROGRAD, Nov. 21.—(By London.)—From reports received here of the Russo-Turkish naval engagement off Sebastopol it is apparent the Turkish cruisers Goeben and Breslau were on their way to bombard the summer residence of Emperor Nicholas just outside Yalta.

There seemingly was much confusion aboard the Goeben when the Russian ships appeared twenty-five miles off the mouth of Sebastopol harbor. The Goeben made no immediate alteration in her course, nor did she open fire at once.

The Russian fleet seemed in battle formation, bringing the Goeben between them and the coast.

Was the Lot of This Lady Who Tells the Story of How She Recovered Her Health

Dallas, N. C.—Mrs. Thomas Davis, of this place, says: "About two years ago, when I was eighteen years old, I was in a bad condition from womanly troubles. I felt as if I would never get well. I suffered dreadful pains in my hips, sides and abdomen, for about six days out of every month. I couldn't sleep at night, and the pain was so bad that I couldn't get down for the blood would seem to rush to my head. I felt I must have some relief, for to others, and thought I would try it. After the use of one bottle, the pains had entirely stopped and I was able to sleep. After using four bottles, I was a well woman. I am now weighing 125 lbs., and I am able to do all my work without any trouble. I can only recommend Cardui to suffering women. For I know it helped me. My friends who saw me when I weighed 85 pounds and would see me now, would know what Cardui had done for me." Try Cardui.—(Adv.)
